ABSTRACT

Ten species of whiteflies (Hemiptera, Aleyrodidae) representing six genera were studied from a collection from different localities in the middle of Iraq. These species are Acaudaleyrodes rachipora (Singh, 1931); Bemisia afer (Priesner and Hosny, 1934); Bemisia tabaci (Gennadius, 1889); Dialeurodes citri (Ashmead, 1885); Dialeurodes kirkaldy (Kotinsky, 1907); Neomaskellia andropogonis Corbett, 1926; Siphoninus phillyreae (Haliday, 1835); Trialeurodes ricini (Misra, 1924); Trialeurodes vaporariorum (Westwood, 1856) and Trialeurodes irakeensis (Al-Malo and Abdul-Rassoul, 2000). Notes are given on their localities, date of collection and host plants.

Key words: Aleyrodidae, Distribution, Host plants, Iraq, Whiteflies.

INTRODUCTION

Whiteflies are small insects belonging to the family Aleyrodidae order Hemiptera; it comprised 1556 species in 161 genera from all over the world (Evans, 2007); they feed on about 164 plant families (Mound and Halsey, 1978). Duffus and Flock (1982) indicated that as a result of their feeding they transmit about thirty viral diseases, in addition to this the secretion of the honeydew causes fungi growth.

At that time, there was no taxonomic study for this family in Iraq, but there were recorded some species such as Hussain (1963) who reported Bemisia tabaci (Gennadius, 1889); followed by Derwesh (1965) who added two more species Acaudaleyrodes rachipora (Singh, 1931) (= Acaudaleyrodes citti (Priesner and Hosny, 1934)) and Trialeurodes sp.; two further species were reported by Mound and Halsey (1978) namely Trialeurodes rara Singh, (1931) and Trialeurodes ricini (Misra, 1924). Subsequently, one species was added by Swailm et al. (1974) namely Siphoninus granati (Priesner and Hosny, 1934), which was a synonym of S. phillyreae (Mound and Halsey, 1978) and five species were added to the Iraqi fauna by Farag and Amine (1982). These were Aleyrodes proletella (Linnaeus, 1758), Bemisia afer (Priesner and Hosny, 1934), Bemisia hanocki (group), Siphoninus phillyreae (Haliday, 1835), and Trialeurodes porosus (Priesner and Hosny, 1934).

Host Plants and Distribution of Some Whiteflies

It appeared later that one of these species T. porosus was a synonym of Aleuroclava porosus (Priesner and Hosny, 1937) (Evans, 2007), Al-Malo and Abdul-Rassoul (2000) described Trialeurodes irakeensis as a new species to the science.

MATERIALS AND METHODS

Pupal cases of whitefly have been collected from infected plant leaves during the years 1986 to 1988, in the central region of Iraq; the specimens were collected from about 50 species of host plants belonging to 25 plant families, and kept in the petri dishes. The infected leaves by the whitefly were examined by a binocular dissecting microscope to distinguish the pupal case with a fine needle, pupal cases were mounted on slides according to Bink (1979), and examined under a compound microscope by using an ocular micrometer to measure length of the insect. Identification keys of Mound (1965, 1966), Habib and Farag (1970) and Sampson and Drews (1956) were used to identify species collected during this study.
